

Not being able to transfer my cell phone number to another provider creates somewhat of a monopoly.

My current provider is well aware of the difficulty and expenses involved when changing phone numbers. By making it economically unfeasible for me to switch to another provider they are reducing competition.